PROSPEROUS YEAR

STATE DEVELOPMENT BOARD REPORT SHOWS INCREASED PRODUCTION

The monthly bulletin just issued by the California Development Board for the month of December, 1916, contains some interesting figures. Sixty thousand acres of rice were harvested in the state. The first sales were for $1.75, but the growers are holding their stock in anticipation of a rate of two cents per pound. The sugar beet acreage for 1916 was 25 per cent larger than the previous year and the prices for 1916 averaged $6 a ton as against $5.40 in 1915. The potato acreage for the past year shows a decrease of 3000 acres, but an increase in yield of 435,000 bushels. The item of most importance to the consumer, however, is the price. In 1915 potatoes sold at 75 cents per bushel and in 1916 for $1.40.

There was an increase of 7120 bales of cotton ginned in the Imperial valley in 1916 over the previous year.

The report shows that stock bred at the University farm at Davis carried away a number of prizes at the Chicago Livestock show. California bred cattle that never tasted corn won grand and reserve grand championship prizes in competition with fat steers from the corn belt.

The increase in the production of butter in the state the past year was 2,480,765 pounds. Thirty-three thousand eight hundred and ten more cases of evaporated milk were produced in 1916 than in 1915. The production of cheese shows an increase of 1,495,349 pounds. Several varieties of cheese formerly imported are now being made in California and find a ready market.

JUDGE WHOMES DEAD

WELL KNOWN GLENDALE MAN PASSED AWAY EARLY THIS MORNING

Judge Joseph Whomes, who for more than eight years had been a resident of Glendale and had served as City Recorder all of that time up to a few weeks ago, passed away Wednesday morning, January 10, at half past two at his home, 200 West Ninth street, aged 77 years, 4 months and 15 days. Judge Whomes had been an unusually active man for his years and enjoyed the best of health until last summer when he was taken with an illness that developed into tuberculosis. Failing health caused him to retire from active work and at last Thusrday night's meeting of the Board of Trustees his resignation was accepted and the trustees formally expressed their appreciation of the Judge's capability, efficiency, courage and scrupulous sensitiveness to responsibility during the eight years in which he served the city. Until the past summer Judge Whomes was the embodiment of health. He delighted in long walks and a year ago did some extraordinary feats of mountain climbing for a man of his age. He was proud of his splendid physical ability and his alert mind, but when told of the disease which had attacked him he seemed to lose courage.

Judge Whomes was born in England but came to this country more than fifty years ago. With his wife and baby he left his native shores and came to New York and after a short time spent in the metropolis they settled at Kewanee, Ill. Later they spent ten years in Texas before coming in 1884 to Los Angeles, where they lived for thirty years. They resided in Redondo a short time before coming to Glendale eight years ago.

The deceased is survived by his widow and seven children, J. Harry Whomes of Los Angeles, Dr. George Whomes of San Gabriel, Dr. R. W. Whomes of Pasadena, Mrs. Frank Adams of Los Angeles, F. H. Whomes of Los Angeles, I. F. Whomes of Los Angeles and Dr. Arthur Whomes of South Pasadena. Three other children have pasesd on.

Funeral services will be held at Rosedale Chapel to-morrow afternoon, at half past two followed by cremation. The services will be simple, according to Judge Whomes' request.

DR. MC NAUGHT TO SPEAK

The Federation of Parent-Teacher associations has been fortunate in securing a visit from Dr. Schallenberg McNaught, the state commissioner of education of elementary schools, who will give an address before the members of the Parent-Teacher associations at the high school auditorium on Friday, January 19, at 3 p. m. The elementary schools of the state have a considerably less proportionate amount to the number of pupils than the high schools and Dr. McNaught is now touring the state encouraging the elementary schools in their struggle to maintain a proper degree of efficiency, especially in the rural schools. Glendale is to be congratulated in securing a visit from this very efficient and busy woman. She is a forceful speaker and the public generally is invited to avail themselves of the privilege of hearing her at the high school on January 19.

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

GOD MEETS SINFUL MAN ONLY AT THE CROSS SAYS EVANGELIST HABBICK

Last evening at the Presbyterian church the evangelistic meetings began in earnest when Rev. John D. Habbick brought a stirring message from Romans 1-16: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of god unto salvation to every one that believeth."

This text sums up no new phases for the salvation of souls, although many are seeking safety by other gospels. The great, big, stalwart, strong intellectual giant Paul was not ashamed of it. Why should you and I, little fellows, be?

A man once complained to Sam Jones because he had had no such experience at his conversion as Paul. Sam Jones replied: "The Lord has more sense than to waste big shot on a snow bird."

We want to remember that Paul was a religionist before he was a Christian, sincere in his belief, honest in his convictions, but he would have gone to hell with them all if Jesus Christ had not found him, faced him about and turned him the right way. He was changed completely. It is not surprising that he could say: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ."

It is the power that can shake deceit and conceit out of all of us. It is the same as it was in Paul's day; it is the only gospel that can bring salvation to lost men. For this reason these meetings are the greatest thing in Glendale to-night.

We hear so much about efficiency these days we tire of it. Every magazine we pick up is full of it. Even the Sunday School conventions seem to have but two strings to harp upon, efficiency and adolescence. I wish, for a little change, they could get hold of the power of God and then both these strings would be in perfect harmony, and young people would be saved.

When a preacher speaks to a congregation like this one on the steps of repentance and begins with restitution to God and man, it is unpopular and many begin to look tired and sleepy. Most of us don't want to give back to God what we owe him, and we are slow to make good to our fellow man that which the law can't get out of us, that old long-standing grudge and that outlawed debt.

This gospel has the power to make any of you people do all these things and then some. Adoption is a fine theme. Talk about being sons of God, joint heirs with Jesus Christ, thrones and powers to be yours, angels, archangels and cherubims bowing down before you and the most of you will get shouting happy. But you have got to get right with God before you get all this glory.

At tne cross of Jesus Christ is the only place where God meets sinful man. It is alone the cleansing place. If you have not had a personal experience with Jesus Christ at the cross, I beseech you to get it before you sleep to-night. Get the vision of the wounded, bleeding Saviour as he hung on the cross and know by experience that He was "wounded for your transgressions and by His stripes you are healed." This was Paul's personal experience; it made him a firebrand for this gospel of Christ, the power of God.

A minister who heard me preach on the shed blood of Jesus Christ the only atonement for sin, said to me: "Why don't you give up that bloody sacrifice business? It is out of date. You are bound to be a failure if you keep on as you are now doing."

For more than a score of years I have seen the preaching of this bloody sacrifice lift men and women out of sin, restore children to parents, raise up and set upon their feet men whom the Keeley cure could not touch, bring back women sunk low by the sin of man, and open the eyes of moral and self-righteous men that they might see their lost and undone condition. The power of the gospel alone can break the shackles of sin. I am still at the same business of preaching the gospel, while that other man is running a hog ranch up near Stockton. I had rather bring light, liberty and life to dying men and women than to feed swill to hogs.

You people have no saloons, thank God for it, good homes and a spiritual church. But there is a great danger for you. Beware lest in your ease and comfort you forget the perishing ones, those out of Christ, in your families, your neighbors and friends. Tell them by the grace of God they can be saved. You know because He saved you.

These are "whosoever" meetings.

FLOOD CONTROL

ELECTION TO BE HELD, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 2, FOR $4,450,000 BONDS

The report of Flood Control Engineer Reagan which enumerates the expenditure proposed in controlling the flood waters in every portion of Los Angeles county has been accepted by the members of the Board of Supervisors. The items of expenditure necessary in the various districts bring the total amount necessary for a bond election up to $4,450,000.

Supervisor Jonathan S. Dodge calls our attention to the fact that of this amount $1,188,005 has been arranged for work in the Fifth District, as appears under the subject of Flood Control on page 2 of this issue.

This is a great project for the people, and it is only for the people. It does not elevate anyone to enviable position nor exploit one person to the disadvantage of another. It is not a political project but a people's project. The money will be spent at home and mostly for labor and material at hand.

Every section of Los Angeles county should be intensely interested in flood control work. For the county to take up the work as a unit is the only way in which satisfactory results can be obtained. No community can do any permanent or lasting work in flood control alone.

The election to vote for $4,450,000 bonds for this project has been set for February 2 and every voter with the welfare of this section at heart will vote for the bonds.

EIGHTY-ONE YEARS OLD

Mrs. S. J. Lane, who makes her home with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Lane, at 1017 Chestnut street, received a very happy surprise Tuesday, the day being her eighty-first birthday anniversary. She had been invited to spend the day with her son, O. C. Lane, and wife on Vine street and after dinner in the evening a 'phone message came from Mrs. O. A. Lane that some friends were waiting for her at home. Arriving home she found about thirty of her friends from the First Baptist church gathered there to congratulate her and celebrate her birthday anniversary. A most delightful evening was spent in social converse and music, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cunningham contributing some very enjoyable vocal and instrumental selections to the evening's pleasure. Dainty refreshments were served later in the evening, after which all departed expressing many good wishes for the lady honored. Among those present were Mrs. Lane's son, O. A. Lane, and wife and son John; her son, O. C. Lane, and wife of Vine street; her grandson, O. C. Lane, Jr., and wife of Burbank, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cunningham, Dr. and Mrs. Vanderhoof, Mr. and Mrs. Knouse and little daughter, Eloise, Mr. and Mrs. Curl, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Pingree, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Walker, Mrs. Wm. Thompson, Miss Mary Larkin, Mr. Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Moore.

GROSVENORS LEAVE GLENDALE

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grosvenor recently disposed of their home at 1421 Burchett street and have taken an apartment in Los Angeles near the Manual Arts High School, which Mrs. Grosvenor and her son have entered. Mrs. Grosvenor, during her residence in Glendale, has been prominent in every good work and general regret is felt in the community at the loss of this greatly esteemed family. Mrs. Grosvenor was the corresponding secretary of the Federation of Parent-Teacher associations and has taken a very active part in the civic, Shakespeare and music sections of the Tuesday Afternoon club, contributing materially to the success of these sections and their programs. The Grosvenor home in Glendale is now owned by Mrs. Tufts of Phoenix, Ariz., who with her son has come to Glendale to make this her home.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1917

FLOOD CONTROL—THINK ABOUT IT

The great work of making Los Angeles county the principality of the world is to go on.

With long and careful labor, the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county have approached the question of controlling the wild waters of flood times, and this board has enlisted the best engineering brains to be commanded in this country.

First and foremost the question is one of the saving of money to the property holders of the county. These wonderfully productive lands of this Pacific coastal plain must be protected from flood devastation—for they can be protected, and we are morally bound to do it, not wholly for our own material gain, but for the safety and prosperity of the people of our blood yet to come in future generations.

The floods in Los Angeles county have completely wiped out $21,000,000 worth of property since 1910. This land is gone—it has been removed from the assessment rolls of Los Angeles county. It is no longer worth taxing.

Since 1907, the damage to property has accumulated to the ratio of $5,000,000 per year—not done in all years, but bearing a pro rata to that amount. Some years we have not been damaged—other years we have been damaged cruelly.

The Board of Supervisors proposes to expend $4,450,000 for the control of flood waters, the diversion and care of washes, the building of dikes and dams, the protection of public highways, private property and the harbors of Long Beach and Los Angeles. This is less money than the ratio of loss each year since 1907.

After more than five years of the most careful deliberation the Board of Supervisors has accepted the report of Engineer J. W. Reagan. A bond issue election will be placed before the people for their approval on Friday, February 2nd. Every effort will be made to acquaint every voter with every phase of this important improvement project. The Board of Supervisors is asking for nothing but intelligent attention. The great and practical need of this project, and its practical plan of engineering will be made apparent to everyone.

The total bond issue amounts to $4,450,000 of which sum there will be expended in the Fifth District the following amounts, viz:

Los Angeles River and The Two Tujunga Rivers	$280,000.00
Devil's Gate and Arroyo Seco Work	290,000.00
Pacoima River (including Hutchin's Flood Control Reservoir)	359,460.00
Verdugo Wash, Glendale and Vicinity	99,800.00
Sycamore Canyon, Glendale and Tropico	28,925.00
Pasadena and Altadena	30,320.00
Santa Clara River and Tributaries	40,000.00
Little Rock and Big Rock Creeks	20,000.00
Haines Canyon	33,500.00
Check Dams not Included in Other Items Herein	6,000.00
	$1,188,005.00

ENERGY AND EXACTNESS ARE NECESSARY

In Tuesday's issue of the Evening News there was a brief discussion of the subject of the State of California being morally responsible for giving the unemployed work of some kind. The theory of the plan of a man's being his brother's keeper is all right, but the brother who is to be given employment should in early life fit himself for doing work well. Among the number who are unemployed there are very few who are fitted for doing any kind of work well. The thoroughly trained and ambitious workmen are always employed. The men who as a rule complain about not being able to get work are those who will not make an extra effort to keep a job if they get it.

There must be a desire to work in the mind of the individual who is seeking work, and further than this the individual must actually know how to do the work in hand. As conditions exist at present, there are so many men who have no desire to work—they put no life into what they are doing. They work as mere machines. There is a lack of preparedness on the part of many people who are seeking employment. They have not learned to be thorough and accurate in the performance of the work in hand.

The washwoman who is always busy does the washing so well that her services are in demand. There is a cause for a washwoman being idle half the time. The thorough and rapid workman creates work for others. The successful farmer grows a few bushels more wheat to give the miller and the baker a few more minutes of work in milling and baking. The fast working carpenter creates a greater demand for the material that enters into the construction of the building. Proficient workmen are an asset to the business world. They create a demand for material and labor.

OWNERS TOO PARTICULAR ABOUT INJURY

The Horticultural Commissioner's Office would sound a warning to owners of orchards that they perhaps in some cases are injuring their own interests by being too particular with fumigators and sprayers as to slight injury suffered by the trees in treatment. The result is that the fumigator, a contractor, in business for a profit, will be as careful as possible that the trees show no injury, even though he does not kill all the scale, and perhaps the grower will find it necessary to fumigate his trees again the next season, when, if they had been given thorough treatment, even with slight burning, the killing would be thorough enough to make the trees reasonably clean for a longer period Of course injury is sometimes done which is unnecessary, and which calls for emphatic remonstrance from the owner. Fruit is sometimes badly spotted, and in a few cases the growth of the tree is seriously injured. Usually, however, in the latter case the better killing of the strong dosage is worth much more than the foliage injury, as that will immediately start out again, the more quickly from the stimulation which the tree receives by fumigation, and in six months the tree will be much better than would have been the case without fumigation, aside from the benefit of killing the scale.

DECIDUOUS TREES

OBSERVATIONS FROM THE HORTICULTURAL COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE

The time of year has arrived when most troubles and pests of deciduous trees can best be treated, as the leaves have so fallen that sprays can be applied at a strength which would be ruinous to the foliage if used during the growing season. A few of the tree troubles to which deciduous trees are liable, and treatment for the same, may be a subject of interest to many growers in our county, though the deciduous interest is not as large here as in some other parts of California.

Black and San Jose Scale

These insects, while not very numerous or troublesome on most of our deciduous orchards, are much more so on trees grown for home use on city lots and small holdings about the suburban towns. The black scale is not usually a pest unless citrus or pepper trees are growing near, but in such locations, though the leaves carry most of the young scale with them when they fall, it will be of advantage to spray the trees with a view to its control. While there is no San Jose scale present, the distillate spray is usually used, as it seems to be rather more effective than other kinds, and it is the cheapest one we have. For use in a power sprayer it can be made by diluting 30 degrees distillate (stove distillate) with sixteen times its volume of water, as the agitator in such a machine will keep that combination well mixed, but if used in a hand sprayer, strong soap suds should be substituted for the water, and then the spray liquid should be thoroughly agitated.

San Jose Scale

If much San Jose scale is present on the trees, we would recommend the lime spray, about ten per cent of the commercial preparation. There are two good brands on the market, known as "Rex" and "Ortho" brands, and as this is an excellent fungicide the standard remedy for peach blight (shothole fungus) also will usually control peach curl leaf, we would give it serious consideration on peach trees for the control of either kind of scale.

Peach Curl Leaf

Every peach grower knows the appearance of curl leaf, and it is often a source of a good deal of anxiety to people who are not acquainted with its comparatively little importance. However, as lime sulphur, applied as above, or a spray of Bordeaux mixture, are also excellent remedies for other tree troubles, we would consider it well worth while to give the trees treatment some time during January if much curl leaf has appeared the past season.

Peach Blight

This trouble has not been of much importance in Southern California so far, but is liable to show itself at any time in black spots which appear on the young shoots and about the buds during the winter and in the spring, killing the latter and seriously checking the shoots. A strong fungicide, Bordeaux mixture is the best, applied about the time the leaves drop is the remedy, which is also helpful as regards curl leaf. The season is rather late for this treatment now, but if the disease shows itself, a treatment during January would better than none.

Shot Hole Fungus

A disease more particularly of almond trees, but liable to show to some extent in all stone fruits, would be controlled by the treatment mentioned above for peach blight.

Wormy Peaches, Peach Twig Borer

These insects, which have proven very troublesome indeed in some northern counties, are showing themselves quite extensively in Southern California during the last three or four years. In some localities, one-fourth of the fruit last year was wormy. The worms live during the winter out of sight in the thick bark at the crotch of the branches, usually in branches from one-half an inch to two inches in diameter, sometimes also in the thick bark about wounds where limbs have been cut off. They can be detected by the little piles of residue (frass) thrown out of the burrows by which they have entered the bark. They begin to come out just as the bloom is beginning to appear in the spring, and then is the time to spray the trees thoroughly with lime sulphur, about ten per cent of the commercial product, and this is practically the only time effective treatment can be given so far as we know. Some of the earliest bloom may be killed, but this is comparatively unimportant. The worms will enter the young shoots as they become an inch or two long, following down from the top of the shoot, causing it to die and droop downwards. They will later pupate in curls of the bark, the adult moth emerging soon after to deposit eggs from which a new brook of worms will be hatched which later enter the young fruit near the stem, or in the cleft and work around the pit, ruining it completely for use or sale. Careful inspection should be given the trees during the winter to detect the worms if present and thorough spraying in the spring if they are found.

THE WORTHY LIFE

He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often, and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche and accomplished his task, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem, or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty, or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others and given the best he had; whose life was an inspiration and whose memory a benediction.—Samuel N. Foss.

GLENDALE'S CITRUS CROP

The Sparr Fruit company has shipped out eight cars of oranges and lemons from its packing house on Glendale avenue since the beginning of the new season on December 8. About 100 cars were shipped out during last season, which closed on December 1, the output not being as extensive as the previous season owing to the shortage in the lemon crop. The market prospects are reported as not being very flattering owing to the dumping of foreign lemons on the New York market and the small sizes in the orange crop are causing some difficulty in marketing. But a fairly good market is expected later on in the year. The citrus crop in the Glendale district has not been affected at all by frost this season. Shipments of this season's crop has not yet begun from Judge Erskine M. Ross's ranch. Eighty-five cars of oranges and lemons were shipped out from the Rossmoyne ranch during the season recently closed. There is a fair crop of citrus fruit in the Glendale district this season.

CHARMING HARPIST ENTERTAINS CLUB

Miss S. Ruth Miller, the brilliant young California harpist, delightfully entertained the Glendale Tuesday Afternoon Club Tuesday, January ninth, at Masonic Temple. The hall was attractively decorated in green and gold in an artistic setting for the afternoon's program. Miss Miller presented a Folk Lore program with a brilliancy of execution and an abandon of feeling which, combined with a charming personality, always wins the hearts of her audience. Miss Miller prefaced her program with a short talk on the history of the harp, in which she said that America is noted as the manufacturer of the finest harps. The harp is of Egyptian origin, and has been known in Europe for a thousand years. Cleopatra is said to have had twenty-five harps built into her palace. A simple musical instrument in the early days, the harp has been perfected by the addition of the heavy front bar at the front by the Irish, who thereby deepened the tone, and by the addition of pedal notches by the French and Italian peoples, which added the range of sharps and flats. Miss Miller's program consisted of harp solos and vocal solos with harp accompaniment. Following is the program in full:

Harp solos:
- Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms—Moore.
- Santa Lucia—Hamlin.
- Annie Laurie.

Vocal Solo: Sing Me to Sleep.

Harp Solos, Spanish Rhythm:
- Bethlehem's Star.
- La Paloma.
- California Mine—Carl Bronson.

Vocal Solo: Mighty Lak a Rose.

Harp Solos:
- Mendelssohn's Songs Without Words.
- Bohemian Girl—Albertine.

Vocal Solo: Just a Wearyin' for You —Carrie Jacobs Bond.

Harp Solos:
- Kathleen Mavourneen.
- Miserere—Gerard Taylor.
- Aloha Oe.

Most interesting reports of the work done since the opening of the club year by the philanthropic committee and by the local relief committee, and a statement of the financial condition of the club were given during the business session by Mrs. L. A SAD MIX-UP

The first of this week announcement was made of the death of Harry Brown in India, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Brown of La Crescenta. For two days Mr. and Mrs. Brown mourned the death of their son, when it was learned that there was a mix-up in delivering the message and that it was Harry Brown, son of Mrs. A. W. Brown, who was dead at Vancouver, Wash.

Saturday morning Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Brown received a long distance call saying, "Harry is very ill with pneumonia." After two days and nights in suspense, they received another message Monday morning saying, "Harry died last night." Messages were wired to brother and sister in the east and other relatives notified. Neighbors and friends came to offer their sympathy and help, among them Mrs. A. W. Brown.

On Tuesday Mrs. A. W. Brown received a mailed message from Vancouver saying, "Harry is very ill with pneumonia." Light began to break and the sun came out from the gloom too bright to look upon for Mr. and Mrs. Brown, while the shadow fell upon their neighbor who had so lovingly offered her consolation to them in their dark hour.

VIOLET LUNCHEON

Mrs. Ed Virden was the hostess at a very pretty violet four-course luncheon on Saturday at her home, 235 Mira Loma avenue, Tropico, the guest of honor being Mrs. J. R. Haugh of Santa Paula. Pretty blue candelabra bore blue candles and there was a profusion of the dainty, fragrant violets everywhere. Places were marked for Mrs. J. R. Haugh, the guest of honor, of Santa Paula; Mrs. J. W. A. Off, Mrs. C. H. McKevett, Mrs. J. H. McCutchon, Miss M. Stowell, Mrs. Harry M. Bowman, Mrs. Ed Hardison, Mrs. Ben Haugh, all of Los Angeles; Miss Kittie Smith and Miss Florence Tilt of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs. Ed Virden.

A tight-fisted old man, being mortally ill, called to him his three best friends, who were an Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotchman. He reminded them that they each owed him 100 pounds and expressed the dying wish that before he was buried they would discharge their obligations by depositing the money they owed him beside him in the coffin.

They all agreed, and when their friend died the Englishman solemnly placed 100 pounds in Bank of England notes in his late friend's coffin. The Irishman laid 100 pounds of gold beside the notes, and the Scotchman took out the 200 pounds, leaving in its place a check for 300 pounds.

TROPICO TRUSTEES

DISCUSS THE QUESTION OF CALLING ELECTION TO VOTE ON WATER BONDS

The trustees of the city of Tropico met in regular session Tuesday evening at 7:30, with the following officers and members of the board present: Trustees Peters, president of the board; Henry, Alspach, Seal and Veselich; City Clerk Mrs. Coleman; City Attorney Shaw; City Engineer Wattles and Health Officer Mabry.

Minutes of the last meeting read and approved.

A communication was received from J. C. Rossman, and also one from E. L. White, making application to sell milk in Tropico. The applications were referred to the City Health Officer.

A communication was received from H. O. Jones of La Crescenta asking for an auto bus license allowing him to operate through Tropico. The license was granted.

The following members of the Glendale Taxicab service made application for a taxicab license allowing them to do local business in Tropico: A. Hoit, C. Kingsbury, A. Wilson, A. M. Starkey, F. E. Boynton, Harry Starkey and A. Demarcus. The licenses were ordered issued.

When oral communications were asked for, Mrs. Tompkins of Hill street reported to the board that she had received the terms upon which the Gas Company would lay their mains on Hill and Green streets, stating that the company claimed it would cost them $500 to make the extension and if the consumers on the streets in question would each pay $25 of the cost, that the company would make the extension, and further that the company would return the $25 to each consumer, provided at least seven consumers were located and using gas on these streets within three years. She stated that it was the sense of the residents on these two streets not to comply with their proposition and ask the board to use its best efforts to compel the Gas Company to extend their mains along these streets. After the matter was thoroughly gone over by the board, it was voted to demand of the Gas Company that they proceed at once to lay their pipes on Hill and Green streets and the clerk was ordered to write the company in regard to the matter.

Richard S. Todd of 344 North Glendale avenue addressed the board in the matter of having boards placed at the crossing on Glendale avenue so that the pedestrians would be able to cross Glendale avenue during the rainy season without either detouring to the San Fernando Road crossing or having to wade a foaming torrent which comes down Glendale avenue during the rainy season. The street superintendent was ordered to secure the necessary lumber and place the boards at the different places where needed.

Mr. Siegel of 523 Columbus street was present and addressed the board in regard to the proposed opening of Columbus avenue. At the last meeting a petition was presented representing 60 per cent. of the frontage, asking that the proposed improvement be abandoned, which was complied with by the board, and now if the property owners will present the board with a petition signed by 51 per cent. of the frontage owners, asking that this street be improved, that the board will at once take up the proceedings.

The reports of the city clerk and city treasurer were read and ordered filed.

The president of the board reported that they had decided to purchase a Harley Davidson motorcycle for police use, at a cost of $295.75.

The question of calling an election to vote on bonds to either purchase a water system or if thought advisable to install an entire new system, after considerable discussion it was voted that the president of the board appoint two citizens to act with him as a committee to determine the amount of bonds to be voted on and report at the next regular meeting.

MORNING

Now morning from her Orient chambers came
And her first footsteps touch'd a verdant hill:
Crowning its lawny crest with amber flame,
Silvering the untainted gushes of its rill,
Which, pure from mossy beds, did down distill,
And after parting beds of simple flowers,
By many streams a little lake did fill
Which round its marge reflected woven bowers,
And, in its middle space, a sky that never lowers.

—John Keats.

A Denver lawyer tells of a man arrested in that town on a serious charge to whom was assigned a bad lawyer. The crude appearance of the man detained to defend him distressed the prisoner.

"Is this my lawyer?" he asked.

"Yes," replied the judge.

"And is he going to defend me?"

"Yes."

"If he should die could I have another lawyer?"

"Yes."

"Then, your honor, I request the privilege of seeing him in the back room for a few minutes."

Fifteen thousand pounds of huckleberries were recently shipped in one week from Mendocino City to San Francisco.

Y. M. C. A. HUTS AT FRONT

By J. W. Pegler, U. P. Correspondent.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(By Mail.)—The fighting front holds no terrors for the Y. M. C. A. Its huts are built wherever soldiers go.

A. K. Yapp, general secretary, after a tour of the British section, is back in London today with an account of the Y. M. C. A.'s work in housing soldiers and providing them with simple luxuries that do much to maintain the buoyant spirits of the Tommies.

"We have established huts in the catacombs of Ypres and Loos," he said, "and one is placed in the grounds of a Trappist monastery where the monks may never speak. There are others in the Somme territory recovered from the Germans, forming little cheer posts for Tommies amid the awful desolation and knee-deep mud of the recent battlefields.

"From the camps at the base the hut lines extend 'way up to advanced positions of the front. We are even developing the dug-out idea for housing men temporarily and providing them with warm food and chocolate. In November we gave the soldiers on one twelve-mile line to the front 161,230 cups of cocoa, tea and coffee. These were men going up for their turn in the attack or returning to the base trenches after being relieved in the trenches."

Many of the Y. M. C. A. establishments are well within range of the German shell fire, but these usually are protected as well as possible by natural concealments.

ENGLAND'S GOVERNMENT

(By United Press)

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(By mail).—The cataclysm of a world war has forced England to apply real American methods to her government. Lloyd George's reorganized cabinet is but a glorified American city council under a commission form of government.

England as a nation was faced with exactly the same problems that confronted hundreds of American cities before the advent of the Galveston and Des Moines plans for administrating municipal affairs. Great Britain had a council that was unwieldly; its decisions were taken after ridiculously long debates and the mistakes it made could not be traced to any responsible source.

Such was the condition of affairs in Des Moines, Iowa, and other American cities during the time they labored under the old ward council governments.

English people for two years have watched the government pile one misadventure upon another, but the cost to them was not represented in money, but in the lives of the nation's best men.

In one short week Lloyd George, England's strong man, wiped out an inefficient, ward council plan of government and substituted the commission of five men, who are held directly responsible for the conduct of the nation's affairs. Each controls certain portions of the country's business and each commissioner or cabinet member has been proved capable.

There also is a queer analogy between the origin of commission form of government in America and England. In the year 1878, there was a scourge of yellow fever in Memphis, Tenn, due to its poor sanitary system. The city had incurred a debt equal to its borrowing power and the legislature in 1879 established a commission to take charge of its affairs. This was one of the first commission plans. In the year 1900 Galveston, Texas, was overwhelmed by a tidal wave which prostrated the city financially. It was placed under a commission government.

In the year 1916 England was on the verge of being overwhelmed by a world war and a commission plan of government was applied to its national affairs.

HOLES

We dodge holes from the cradle to the grave, or nineteen-seventeenly speaking from the pacifier to the crematory.

Take the merest infant. One of the first things it does is to discover the hole in its face and try to climb in it.

Life, particularly with socks, is just one darned hole after another. And in our tin roofs, rowboats, pavements, stewpans, stomachs and bank accounts we find them. Holes, holes, holes. Coal holes, rat holes, post holes, nail holes and mud holes, these are but a few of many.

Yet let us not condemn the hole indiscriminately. Else how would we get our feet in our shoes? Or strain our cranberries? What would our golf links be without them and where would we go from cyclones?

The hole subject is deep. The world is, as you might say, full of them, and we mortals must deal with each hole as we come to it.

"That was rough on Davis."

"What?"

"He stepped on a piece of orange peel, fell and was arrested for giving a street performance without a license."

FOREST RANGERS

The forest ranger meeting in session from January 3 to 12 at College hall, Berkeley, California, is the first ever attended by rangers from all the eighteen national forests in this state, according to District Forester DuBois. More than seventy forest officers, coming all the way from Alturas to San Diego, are making a study of administrative matters and the thousand and one questions pertaining to the business of the national forests in California. In order that they may have every opportunity for informal as well as formal discussion they are occupying the same living quarters, College hall, one of the largest dormitories in connection with the University of California.

The mornings are given up to discussions and papers, and the afternoons to inspection trips about the bay for the purpose of obtaining object lessons of the matters discussed in the morning sessions. Visits will be made to a local automobile factory, the Presidio, an Alameda ship building plant, a San Francisco telephone exchange, a newspaper office and the University of California.

In the evenings the men gather about the fireplace for informal talks by prominent educators, business and professional men. Among the speakers who have been asked to make addresses are Dean Hunt of the University of California; Professor Crocheron, chief farm adviser for the state; Dr. Ebright, president state board of health; William E. Colby, secretary of the Sierra club; A. B. Fletcher of the state highway commission; Capt. Parks and Capt. Poillen, U. S. A.; E. H. Cox, president of the Weed Lumber company, and R. L. Duffus of the San Francisco Bulletin.

The keynote of the convention is public service and the chief subjects under discussion are, first, the ways and means by which the forest service may co-operate with rural communities and organizations in the development of local resources and industries, and the ways and means by which the forest service may co-operate in the improvement of living conditions, particularly as regards rural sanitation and recreation. Second, the meetings are devoted to discussions of national forest administration, protection and development with reference to the application of modern efficiency methods.

CONSTRUCTING ROADS AND TRAILS

Secretary Houston has anounced the amount allotted to each state from the million dollars to be spent during the fiscal year 1918 in constructing roads and trails within or partly within the national forests. This money is part of the ten million dollars appropriated by the federal aid road act to assist development of the national forests which becomes available at the rate of a million dollars a year for ten years.

The allotments as approved are as follows: Alaska, $46,354; Arizona, $58,604; Arkansas, $9,803; California, $140,988; Colorado, $62,575; Idaho, $108,730; Montana, $70,042; Nevada, $10,296; New Mexico, $42,495; Dakota, $8,092; Utah, $41,167; Washington, $91,944; Wyoming $40,684. A total of $9,995 has been alotted to Florida, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, and Oklahoma. The group of eastern states, Georgia, Maine, New Hampshire, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia, in which the government is purchasing lands for national forests, receive $21,120.

In making allotments, it is explained, ten per cent of the amount available for 1918 is withheld as a contingent fund. One-half of the remainder has been apportioned among the states in amounts based on the area of the national forest lands in each state, while the other half has been allotted on a basis of the estimated value of the timber and forage resources which the forests contain.

DUTIES OF HUMANITY

The time has wellnigh come for the substitution of a wider comprehension of the duties of humanity. The truth was taught nineteen centuries ago, but the teaching was imperfectly understood, and still more imperfectly carried out. Sympathy and brotherhood were supposed to be limited to those of the same way of thinking. The time has wellnigh come when true fellowship, equality in duty, and equality in aspiration may be brought about. Not social equality; this never has been possible and never can be possible; but equality in hope, equality in sympathy. . . . Position, education, and power should mark out the leader; first in all things, most of all in virtue. The crusader whose glory it was to smite the infidel should today make it his glory to smite that which is wrong.

Youth will have to be bred to, and grow up in, the comprehension that as a matter of course purely selfish ideas are to be substituted by a sense of sacrifice for the general well-being, and that the State cannot be healthy or the country safe unless there be general contentment. This is the brotherhood to be desired and aimed at, far removed from that which would claim actual equality in position, in influence, in possessions. These things are not possible for the State any more than for the family. Youth with its impressionable nature might easily be saturated with the social spirit. It should be impressed upon children that the individual is, before all, under an obligation to become a useful member of society. They should be told that property has its duties, that it is only by service rendered to the community that inherited property becomes legitimately owned. There is a proverb which says, "What thou hast inherited from thy father earn, that thou mayest make it thine own." "Why have we the highest place," says Sarpeidon to Glaucus, "but because we are first when danger threatens, and spare ourselves last."

In the race for wealth it has been forgotten that wealth in a nation without contentment can offer neither dignity nor safety. Wealth is but a factor in the power of a nation. The qualities that spring from the higher endowments of man cannot be ignored—G. F. Watts.

RECORD YEAR FOR SHIPMENTS OF PORTLAND CEMENT

The shipments of Portland cement from the mills in the United States in 1916 approximated 94,508,000 barrels, compared with 86,891,681 barrels in 1915, an increase of 8.8 per cent; the production of Portland cement approximated 91,194,000 barrels, compared with 85,914,907 barrels in 1915, an increase of 6.1 per cent; the stocks of finished cement fell from 11,781,166 barrels in 1915 to approximately 8,376,000 barrels in 1916, a decrease of 28.9 per cent. These figures are derived from statistics and estimates compiled by Ernest F. Burchard of the United States Geological Survey, department of the interior, and the returns on which they are based were fairly complete for all states except California. The figures for stocks are not considered accurate, as they could not well be checked over by manufacturers until after the end of the year.

The year 1916 undoubtedly holds the record for shipments of Portland cement; the next highest record was in 1913, when 88,689,377 barrels were shipped from the mills. In production 1913 apparently is still the record year, with an output of 92,097,131 barrels, although there is a possibility that the final returns may give 1916 the lead.

Higher prices for cement prevailed throughout the United States except at a few points where top prices were realized in 1915. Trade conditions were generally reported as decidedly better than in 1915, and in certain places the only limitation to output seemed to be shortage of labor and of freight cars.

Six new plants reported production of Portland cement in 1916, one each in California, Minnesota, New York, Oklahoma, Oregon and Texas.

A sheet giving a detailed tabulation of shipments, production and stocks by commercial districts may be had on application to the director, United States Geological Survery, Washington, D. C.

THE BIBLE IN LITERATURE

As a mere literary monument, the English version of the Bible remains the noblest example of the English tongue. Its perpetual use made it from the instant of its appearance the standard of our language.

It formed the whole literature which was practically accessible to an ordinary Englishman; and when we recall the number of common phrases which we owe to great authors, the bits of Shakespeare, or Milton, or Dickens, or Thackeray, which unconsciously weave themselves into our ordinary talk, we shall better understand the strange mosaic of Biblical words and phrases which colored English talk two hundred years ago. The wealth of picturesque allusion and illustration which we borrow from a thousand books, our fathers were forced to borrow from one; and the borrowing was the easier and the more natural that the range of Hebrew literature fitted it for the expression of every phase of feeling.—John Richard Green.

ORANGE SAUCE FOR GAME

Melt 4 tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, add 4 tablespoons of bour sifted with 1 teaspoon of mustard, ½-teaspoon of salt, and a few grains of cayenne. Stir until smooth, then add gradually one cup of brown stock, stirring constantly. Simmer 5 minutes, then add ¼-glass of currant jelly, continue stirring and simmer 5 minutes more. Now add the juice and grated rind of 2 sweet oranges. Heat quickly to the boiling point and serve at once. The grated rind may be omitted, and the rind cooked until tender in boiling water. Drain and scrape off every particle of white skin with fancy vegetable cutters, stamp out leaves, crescents, and so on, and reheat in the sauce. This makes an attractive garnish.

A young writer who has been rather unfortunate in the matter of sales recently confided to a friend that he had at last written something that he was sure would be accepted by the very first magatine to which it was sent.

"You don't say!" exclaimed the friend, interested, "and what is it?"

"A check for a year's subscription."

STUDIES IN PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

By Walt. LeNoir Church

NO. 2.—THE LINE OF LEAST RESISTANCE

Ignoring mooted questions of reincarnation and self heredity, let us assume that "Ribot's Law" of inherited characteristics is near enough the truth to be called scientific.

He states that, as a rule, the dominating characteristics of the father are apt to reappear in the daughter, rather than in the son, while the dominating characteristics of the mother are more likely to be reproduced in her son than in her daughter.

That accounts for the fact that a great lawyer, for instance, rarely has a son great in his father's profession, though he may be even greater than his father in some other profession or business inherited from his mother, or through his mother from her father.

Since woman's hour has struck and she has widened her field of endeavor, we shall see more women become personally noted in their famous father's profession, or avocation, instead of merely transmitting to their sons the characteristics which tend to result in such greatness.

That is why a boy so often resembles his mother's father more than his own father, or a daughter "takes after" her father's mother more than her own mother.

Of course, in each instance, results are more or less modified by inheritances from the other side of the family, but the rule is dominant enough to warn a man from sowing wild oats which he would not like to see harvested by his dearly beloved daughter—and to frighten a hope-to-be mother from indulging in things which would grieve her to see reproduced in her son.

It should be remembered that under certain conditions, such special inheritances manifest in every generation, though sometimes they may keep dormant for one or more generations. But, all the same, that rule accords with the warning in Holy Writ, that "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon their children unto the third and fourth generation." Fortunately, results of parental virtues continue even longer as good outlives evil.

From a merely physical point of view it seems as if nature, caring more for type than for individuals of a species, tends to wed opposites so as to avoid as much as possible the production of giants, dwarfs or other freaks, which certainly appears wise. But, too fraquently, perhaps, unsuited couples wed and "hence these tears" shed by many a disappointed mother who, as a bride, thought her marriage made in heaven, but later had reason to doubt its origin.

With such reservation we may then assume that each child is born as a practically undeveloped consciousness, to be expanded by perception, reflection, reason and imagination, action, etc., all of which may be included in receiving and giving, the two great factors in education.

Then, as both receptivity and expression depend so largely upon the physical condition of the physical body, it appears that the very foundation of a useful education for this life must be the proper condition and use of that body.

That certainly is a good beginning for an education along the line of least resistance.

Furthermore, whether coming from heredity or otherwise it is admitted by all intelligent persons that each child is endowed with certain faculties and powers which are more readily developed than others would be under the same conditions. Then it seems the part of wisdom to educate that child along the line of greatest talent, which would be the line of least resistance; and so get better results for less effort, time and money. After such education, the weaker talents are more readily developed; a great gain.

In this age of specialties the Jack-of-all-trade-master-of-none has the hardest time to get to the front. The all-around education is usually too superficial to bring large practical results.

A great desideratum is a form of education which will enable a student, boy or girl, to make an independent living while acquiring an education and so be able to continue learning. The marked success of certain schools teaching the art of business building depends largely upon facilities offered for that very thing. Gratifying advance has been made in that direction since about 1896, when in Boston, Mass., the writer organized and managed for about two months the first great exhibit in this country of manual training in the public schools and of the practical mechanical results achieved by pupils working in such schools.

The impetus given such effort was largely aided by the daily paper he edited on the grounds in the big building out on Huntington avenue, devoted to the exploitation of that basic idea.

All this tends to prove that the line of least resistance in personal education is along the line of greatest personal strength—physically, mentally, morally and ethically.

The next study will be devoted to the personal question of vital importance to every student:

"What could I do best and why?"

PLENTY OF QUARRELS

Among the applicants for employment in the service of a Jersey household there once came a big, husky Irish girl named Rosalie.

"What was your reason for leaving your last place, Rosalie?" asked the mistress during the course of examination.

"I couldn't stand the way the master and the mistress used to quarrel, mum," was the reply of Rosalie.

"Dear, dear!" exclaimed the lady. "Did they quarrel all the time?"

"All the time, mum," repeated Rosalie, "and, mum, whin it wasn't me an' him, it was me and her."—The Youth's Companion.

IMPARTIAL

"I hope you are not one of those men who go home and find fault with the dinner."

"No," answered Mr. Growcher; "my wife and I eat at a restaurant where we both can find fault."—Irish World.
